14.2A Coastal access legislation in England

14.2A.1 The framework of the legislation

Legislation to provide for increased coastal access in England was introduced by MACA 2009. Sections 296-301 define a new coastal access duty applying to NE and the SoS; require NE to produce a scheme setting out the way it will implement the duty; and define what is meant by the coast. The legislation is a combination, with variations, of previous legislation providing for long-distance routes (see chapter 15.3) and access to open country and registered common land (see chapter 14.2). The intention is that there will be an English coastal long-distance route, associated with which will be a coastal margin of land to which the right of access on foot will apply; the extent of both will be defined in coastal route reports. Schedule 20 to the 2009 Act provides for the establishment and maintenance of the English coastal route.

The 2009 Act amends other Acts. NPACA 1949 ss 55A-55J and Sch 1A (added by the 2009 Act) deal with the production by NE of reports on the coastal route and associated coastal margin. The reports regulations deal with the procedure for coastal route reports, which are open to objections and representations, and have to be approved by the SoS.

CRWA 2000 and the Occupiers' Liability Act 1984 are amended to apply also to coastal margin, which is defined in the coastal margin order.

14.2A.3 The coastal access duty

The coastal access duty¹ requires NE and the SoS so to exercise their functions as to achieve two objectives:

- (i) To provide a route for the whole of the English coast which—
 - (a) consists of one or more long-distance routes along which the public are enabled to make recreational journeys on foot or by ferry, and
 - (b) (except to the extent that it is completed by ferry) passes over land which is accessible to the public.
- (ii) In association with that route, to provide a margin of land along the length of the English coast that is accessible to the public for the purposes of its enjoyment by them in conjunction with that route or otherwise, except to the extent that the margin of land is relevant excepted land.

The duty may be discharged in stages, and within such timescale as appear to NE and the SoS to be appropriate.²

Land is regarded³ as accessible to the public if it is either: (a) land to which there is access under CRWA 2000 (as amended by MACA 2009); (b) land to which there is access under other provisions as defined by CRWA 2000 s 15; or (c) excepted land to which there is access by virtue of any enactment or rule of law (for example a highway).

In discharging the coastal access duty, NE and the SoS must;⁴

- (i) have regard to—
 - (a) the safety and convenience of those using the English coastal route;
 - (b) the desirability of that route adhering to the periphery of the coast and providing views of the sea; and
 - (c) the desirability of ensuring that so far as reasonably practicable interruptions to that route are kept to a minimum.
- (ii) aim to strike a fair balance between the interests of the public in having rights of access over land and the interests of any person with a relevant interest (see 14.2A.2 — definitions) in the land.

The provisions are applied to the Crown and Crown land, including land which the monarch owns privately rather in right of the Crown.⁵

14.2A.4 The coastal access scheme

NE must⁶ prepare a scheme setting out the approach it will take when discharging the coastal access duty. Such a scheme must be approved by the SoS. An initial scheme was approved on 23 March 2010. NE may revise a scheme and must do so at least once within three years of the approval of the initial scheme.⁷ A revised scheme was approved in July 2013 (link).

14.2A.5 Coastal route reports

NE may prepare a coastal route report under the framework set out in NPACA 1949 s 51 for long-distance routes regardless of whether the criteria specified in s 51 are satisfied.⁸ The proposed route in a coastal route report may include part of an existing long-distance route.⁹ If NE considers that any preliminary activity is necessary prior to the preparation of a report, it must consider whether it would be appropriate for the access authority to carry out that work, and if it does so, takes all reasonable steps to conclude an agreement with the access authority.¹⁰

The procedure for publicising reports is set out in NPACA 1949 Sch IA, supplemented by the coastal reports regulations. A report has to be advertised, and notice given to specified persons¹¹. A right of objection is given to persons with a relevant interest,¹² but restrictions are placed on what is an admissible objection. The meaning of 'relevant interest' was considered in the hearings on objections to NE's Weymouth Bay proposals. The appointed person considered that people who had a private right of access along a track proposed to be followed by the route had a 'relevant interest'. The SoS disagreed.¹³ NE must send a copy of any objection to the SoS, who in turn must refer the objection to an appointed person.¹⁴ The appointed person must determine whether the objection is an admissible objection and notify the objector, NE and the SoS.¹⁵ NE must comment on admissible objections and may suggest alternatives.

Other people may make representations (but not objections) to NE.¹⁶ NE must send these (or in some cases a summary) to the SoS with its comments.¹⁷ Where an objection is determined to be an admissible objection, the SoS must send specified documents to the appointed person¹⁸: these include any representations relevant to the objection. The appointed person must determine whether the proposals strike a fair balance¹⁹ and report to the SoS:²⁰ the report may propose modifications. The appointed person may require NE or the SoS to provide information, and may hold an inquiry or hearing.²¹ Before making a determination under s 52, the SoS must consider the report and any objections and representations.²² After making a determination, due notice must be given by the SoS.²³ The reports regulations amplify these provisions, and should be read with them. Defra has published guidance on the SoS's decision-making process, including the consideration of representations and objections (link).

The provisions in the 1949 Act for subsequent variation of an approved report are applied with variations.²⁴

14.2A.6 Coastal margin and excepted land

Coastal margin

The coastal margin order²⁵ defines land as coastal margin (to which the right of access on foot in CRWA 2000 will apply unless the land is excepted land) as being land in one or more of the following categories:

- Land crossed by the line of an approved section of the coastal route, or land which is adjacent to and within 2 metres either side of that line, and land which is seaward of a line of an approved section of the coastal route and which lies between the 2 metre seaward side of the land and the seaward extremity of the foreshore (i.e. including any beach), provided that the land in these categories, taken as a whole, is coastal land (i.e. presumably excluding any length of the coastal route that runs inland, e.g. to a river crossing point).
- Land which is on the landward side of the line of an approved section of the coastal route, which is foreshore, cliff, bank, barrier, dune, beach or flat, or which is land of any other kind treated by CRWA 2000 s 15 as being accessible to the public apart from that Act, provided that the land in these categories, taken as a whole, is coastal land.
- Land crossed by the line of an official alternative to the coastal route, or land which is adjacent to and within 2 metres either side of that line, at the time when that alternative is in operation.
- Land crossed by the line of a temporary route for the coastal route, or land which is adjacent to and within 2 metres either side of that line to the extent that the landowner has agreed to that route (under NPACA 1949 s 55I\(4\)\(d\)).

Where the approved proposals provide for the route to be varied in case of erosion (see 14.2A.8), the reference to the line of an approved section for the purpose of defining coastal margin is a reference to the line as it has effect from time to time in accordance with the approved proposals.²⁶

The landward boundary of the coastal margin may be varied from the above definition where the approved proposals contain a provision²⁷ for the landward boundary to coincide with a physical feature, regardless of whether the effect is to include or exclude land as coastal margin, e.g. the effect might be to create a route narrower than 4m wide.²⁸ Similarly, where the approved proposals provide for either the landward or seaward boundary to coincide with a physical feature,²⁹ that boundary takes precedence over the definition in the coastal margin order.³⁰

CRWA 2000 was amended as follows:

- s 1 amended to extend the definition of access land to include coastal margin, and the definition of open country to exclude coastal margin.
- s 2 amended the definition of 'relevant statutory prohibition' (which overrides the right of access) to apply to any enactment, including local or private Acts, in the case of coastal margin.
- s 3 amended that it applies only to Wales, i.e. the Welsh Assembly Government continues to have a power to make an order extending the open country definition to apply to the coast.
- a new s 3A gives the Secretary of State power to make the coastal margin order in respect of land in England. It also provides for when land specified in a coastal route report as being coastal margin becomes subject to CRWA provisions regarding right of access.

- s 10 was not amended but the effect of the exclusion of coastal margin from the definition of 'open country' in s 1 means that on a review of the statutory map (see chapter 14.2.6) land which is shown as open country but has since become coastal margin will have to be excluded.
- the power in s 16 to dedicate land as access land has been extended to allow dedication of land as coastal margin if it is coastal margin or land adjacent to it.
- s 19 amended so that NE as well as the access authority has power to erect notices on coastal margin.
- s 20 amended to require NE to inform people that rights conferred on coastal margin don't affect other rights that may exist.
- s 21 amended to make NE the relevant authority for coastal margin, with power to delegate to a national park authority or the Forestry Commission.

Excepted land

The provisions in CRWA 2000 Sch 1 Part 1 relating to excepted land (see chapter 14.2.7) are applied also to coastal margin, but with the following amendments:

- arable land, golf courses, regulated caravan or camping sites and burial grounds are not excepted land when they form part of a coastal route strip³¹ (i.e. the coastal route can run through these types of land, but there will be no adjacent coastal margin);
- land within 20 metres of a dwelling, flood and sea defence works, land within 20m of a building used for housing livestock and land habitually used for the training of racehorses are not excepted land when they are coastal margin;³²
- land which is both coastal margin and either;
 - (a) a highway (including a footpath, bridleway or restricted byway) or
 - (b) is, or forms part of, a school playing field or is used or otherwise occupied for the purposes of a school is excepted land.³³

The approved proposals may include a provision for the boundary of excepted land to be defined by reference to a physical feature, and where the boundary is so defined, that takes precedence over the definitions in Sch 1.³⁴

14.2A.7 Liability and exclusions or restrictions on the right of access

Liability

The application of the Occupiers' Liability Act 1957 Act (see chapter 14.2.17) to land to which the right of access under CRWA 2000 applies applies also to coastal margin by virtue of the application of the 2000 Act. The Occupiers' Liability Act 1984 is, however, amended³⁵ so that its application to the 2000 Act where land is coastal margin refers to risk resulting from the existence of any physical feature, whether of the landscape or otherwise. The liabilities of NE and the SoS are also restricted in respect of their preparation or approval of coastal access reports, or, in the case of NE, erecting, or failing to erect, signs or notices, or failing to exclude or restrict access.³⁶

Exclusions or restrictions on the right of access

The general restrictions in CRWA 2000 Sch 2 on the right of access (see chapter 14.2.3) apply also to coastal margin, except that Sch 2 has been amended to protect permitted fishing-related conduct; to exclude coastal margin from the summer restriction on dogs, but apply different rules to dogs on coastal margin; and exclude from right of access anyone obstructing user of coastal route.³⁷

As indicated above, a report prepared under NPACA 1949 s 55D report may set out proposals for the boundaries of coastal margin, or of excepted land, to coincide with a physical feature. Such a report must also contain a map and a description of the landward boundary, and such proposals (if any) that NE considers appropriate for restrictions on access. NE must consult prior to preparing the report. Where proposals for restrictions on access are included in the approved proposals NE must make directions in accordance with the approved proposals.³⁸

CRWA 2000 was also amended as follows:

- s 22 was amended so that owners and other 'entitled persons' may not exclude access (see chapter 14.2.15) on coastal margin.
- s 23 was amended so that owners may not restrict the use of dogs on coastal margin.
- s 24 was amended so that the relevant authority (see chapter 14.2.16) can make a land management direction on coastal margin without an application, and can authorise a specified person to handle exclusions or restrictions.
- s 25 was amended to limit its application to coastal margin and the approved coastal route.
- a new s 25A was added to give the relevant authority power to exclude or restrict access to salt marsh or flat for reasons of unsuitability for public access.
- s 26 was amended to give the relevant authority power to delegate a decision to a specified person.
- the existing provisions in s 27 requiring consultation with the local access forum and a review in certain cases were extended to apply to the new s 25A except where the direction was made in accordance with approved proposals.
- s 31 was amended to restrict its application to coastal margin.

Defra has issued new guidance, or revised existing guidance issued under CRWA 2000, in respect of matters such as restrictions and dedication of land (link).

14.2A.8 The coast, estuaries, and ferries

What constitutes 'the coast' is defined by the 2009 Act³⁹ as the coast of England adjacent to the sea, and including the coast of any English islands in the sea, other than excluded islands. An island is excluded if it is neither accessible on foot (by causeway or the foreshore) at least some of the time nor specified by order made by the SoS. The SoS may make such an order only if satisfied that the coast of the island is of sufficient length to enable the establishment of one or more long-distance routes along its length capable of affording the public an extensive journey on foot.⁴⁰ As with other legislation (e.g. WCA 1981) the 2009 Act does not apply to the Isles of Scilly, but may be applied with or without amendments, by order made by the SoS.⁴¹ In July 2014 Parliament approved an order to extend the provisions to the Isle of Wight with effect from 1 October 2014.⁴²

Further provision is made where the coast is interrupted by a river estuary.⁴³ In such cases NE may exercise its functions as if the references in the coastal access provisions to the sea included the relevant upstream waters of the river. These are defined as either the waters from the seaward limit of the estuarial waters of the river upstream to the first public foot crossing, or, if NE so decides, the waters from the seaward limit of the estuarial waters of the river upstream to such limit, downstream of the first public foot crossing, as may be specified by it. Criteria are specified for NE's decision-making in such cases.⁴⁴ A public foot crossing is a bridge or tunnel over or through which the public have a right of way, or right of access, on foot.

In relation to ferries, the existing provision⁴⁵ enabling a highway authority to provide a ferry for the purpose of a long-distance route is extended so that an authority may also provide a ferry as part of the English coastal route even if the approach to the ferry is not a highway.⁴⁶ The coastal route may utilise a ferry that only runs at certain times.⁴⁷

14.2A.9 Coastal erosion

If NE considers that a length of coastal route part will pass through an area that is or may be (a) subject to significant coastal erosion or encroachment by the sea, or (b) subject to significant physical change due to other geomorphological processes, the coastal route report may propose that the route be determined at any time as provided for in the proposals, rather than as shown on the map.⁴⁸ However the map must show the line of the route at the time of preparation of the report. The report may provide for the route to be determined by reference to the edge of a cliff or boundary of a field (as it exists from time to time).

14.2A.10 Alternative routes and temporary diversions

The coastal route report may contain provision for official alternative routes to be identified either to provide an alternative at times of known restrictions or in response to high tide, flooding or erosion.⁴⁹

A temporary diversion of the coastal route, or an official alternative route, may be given by direction by NE when either NE or the SoS restricts or excludes access.⁵⁰ Such a temporary diversion

14.2A.11 Establishment and maintenance of the coastal route

Provisions for establishment and subsequent maintenance are set out in the 2009 Act.⁵¹ NE and the access authority are given powers to enter into agreements with owners or occupiers for the carrying out of works.⁵² or for access authority to enter into an agreement, works of type defined by sub-para (3). The agreement can provide for which party carries out the works, and for the contracting authority to pay for them. The contracting authority has default powers where an owner or occupier fails to comply with an agreement, and reserve powers, where agreement cannot be reached, for NE or access authority to undertake works after giving notice, subject to a right of appeal to the SoS.⁵³ NE has power to fund works, or works under CRWA 2000 on section 15 route land (see below).⁵⁴ However there does not appear to be any duty on NE, or any other party, to maintain the coastal route, other than the existing duty on a highway authority to maintain any highway maintainable at public expense over which the route passes.

NE may erect and maintain signs, after consulting owner and occupier, and may delegate that power to the access authority, but the power may not be exercised on a pavement (footway) or on a way that is a public right of way for mechanically-propelled vehicles.⁵⁵ NE has power to remove, or contribute to cost of removing signs erected under previous provisions or provisions for signing boundaries.⁵⁶ There is a power of entry for a person authorised by NE, or in some instances the access authority, for a range of purposes.⁵⁷

Where the coastal route crosses land which is regarded as accessible to the public under CRWA 2000 s 15 Sch 20 to the 2009 Act applies the means of access provisions in the 2000 Act (see chapter 14.2.21) to that land.⁵⁸

- (2) A report under this section shall contain a map showing the route, defining those parts thereof over which there exists a public right of way, and indicating in each case the nature of that right; and the report shall set out such proposals as Natural England may think fit—
 - (a) for the maintenance or improvement of any highway along which the route passes and which is a public path, a restricted byway or a way shown in a definitive map and statement as a restricted byway or byway open to all traffic;
 - (b) for the provision and maintenance of such new public paths as may be required for enabling the public to journey along the route;
 - (c) for the provision and operation of ferries where they are needed for completing the route; and
 - (d) for the provision of accommodation, meals and refreshments along the route.
- (3) A report under this section may also include such recommendations as Natural England may think fit for the restriction of traffic on existing highways along which the route passes.
- (4) Before preparing a report under this section Natural England shall consult every National Park authority, joint planning board, county council, county borough council and district council through whose Park or area the route passes; and it shall be the duty of every such authority, board or council to furnish to Natural England such information as Natural England may reasonably require for the purposes of the report.
- (5) A report under this section shall contain an estimate, in such form as the Minister may require, of the capital outlay likely to be incurred in carrying out any such proposals contained therein as are mentioned in subsection (2) of this section, of the annual cost of maintaining any existing highways falling within paragraph (a) of that subsection and any new public paths provided for by the proposals, and of the annual expenditure likely to be incurred by local authorities and National Park authorities in connection with the provision and operation of ferries, and the provision of accommodation, meals and refreshments, so far as those matters are provided for by the proposals.
- (6) In this section—

‘definitive map and statement’ has the same meaning as in Part III of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981

SCHEDULE IA COASTAL ACCESS REPORTS

Introductory

1. In this Schedule—
 - (a) “coastal access report” means a report submitted under section 51 pursuant to the coastal access duty;
 - (b) references to a fair balance are references to a fair balance between—
 - (i) the interests of the public in having rights of access over land, and
 - (ii) the interests of any person with a relevant interest in the land, (to which section 297(3) of the Marine and Coastal Access Act 2009 (general duties in connection with the coastal access duty) refers).

Advertising etc of coastal access reports

2. (1) Natural England must—
 - (a) advertise a coastal access report, and
 - (b) take such steps as are reasonable to give notice of the report to persons within sub-paragraph (2).
- (2) Those persons are—
 - (a) persons with a relevant interest in affected land;
 - (b) each access authority for an area in which affected land is situated;
 - (c) each local access forum for an area in which affected land is situated;
 - (d) the Historic Buildings and Monuments Commission for England;
 - (e) the Environment Agency;
 - (f) such other persons as may be specified in regulations made by the Secretary of State.
- (3) The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision about—
 - (a) the form and manner in which reports are to be advertised under sub-paragraph (1)(a);
 - (b) the form and manner in which notices are to be given under sub-paragraph (1)(b);
 - (c) the timing of any advertisement or the giving of any notice.

Objections by persons with relevant interest in affected land

3. (1) Any person who has a relevant interest in affected land may make an objection to Natural England about a coastal access report.
- (2) For the purposes of this Schedule an objection is not an admissible objection unless it—
 - (a) satisfies the conditions in sub-paragraphs (3) and (4), and
 - (b) is made in accordance with any requirements imposed by regulations under sub-paragraph (7)(b).
- (3) The first condition is that the objection is made on the ground that the proposals in the report, in such respects as are specified in the objection, fail to strike a fair balance as a result of one or more of the following—
 - (a) the position of any part of the proposed route;
 - (b) the inclusion of proposals under subsection (2) of section 55B or the nature of any proposal under that subsection;
 - (c) the inclusion of, or failure to include, an alternative route under section 55C(2) or the position of any such alternative route or any part of such a route;
 - (d) the inclusion of, or failure to include, proposals under one or more of paragraphs (a) to (c) of section 55D(2) or the nature of any proposal made under such a paragraph;

- (4) The second condition is that the objection specifies the reasons why the person making the objection is of the opinion that a fair balance is not struck as a result of the matter or matters within sub-paragraph (3)(a) to (f).
- (5) An objection under this paragraph may propose modifications of the proposals in the report if the person making the objection considers—

- (a) that those modifications would remedy, or mitigate the effects of, the failure to strike a fair balance to which the objection relates, and
 - (b) that the proposals as so modified would satisfy the requirements of sub-paragraph (6).
- (6) Modified proposals satisfy the requirements of this sub-paragraph if what they propose—
- (a) is practicable,
 - (b) takes account of the matters mentioned in section 297(2), and (where appropriate) section 301(4), of the Marine and Coastal Access Act 2009 (matters to which Natural England and the Secretary of State must have regard when discharging the coastal access duty), and
 - (c) is in accordance with the scheme approved under section 298 of that Act (the scheme in accordance with which Natural England must act when discharging the coastal access duty) or,

- (4) An appointment under sub-paragraph (2) may, by notice in writing given to the appointed person, be revoked at any time by the Secretary of State in respect of any objection if the appointed person has not, before that time, given the Secretary of State a report containing a recommendation under paragraph 11 in relation to the objection.
- (5) Where the appointment of the appointed person is revoked in respect of any objection, the Secretary of State must appoint another person under sub-paragraph (2) to deal with the objection afresh under this Schedule.
- (6) Nothing in sub-paragraph (5) requires any person to be given an opportunity to make fresh representations or comments or to modify or withdraw any representations or comments already made.

Determination of admissibility of objections

 - (ii) whether any modification of those proposals would produce proposals that strike a fair balance or mitigate the effects of any failure to strike a fair balance,

OCCUPIERS' LIABILITY ACT 1957 (c. 31)

I. Preliminary

- (1) The rules enacted by the two next following sections shall have effect, in place of the rules of the common law, to regulate the duty which an occupier of premises owes to his visitors in respect of dangers due to the state of the premises or to things done or omitted to be done on them.

- (2) The rules so enacted shall regulate the nature of the duty imposed by law in consequence of a person's occupation or control of premises and of any invitation or permission he gives (or is to be treated as giving) to another to enter or use the premises, but they shall not alter the rules of the common law as to the persons on whom a duty is imposed or to whom it is owed; and accordingly for the purpose of the rules so enacted the persons who are to be treated as an occupier and as his visitors are the same (subject to subsection (4) of this section) as the persons who would at common law be treated as an occupier and as his invitees or licensees.
- (3) The rules so enacted in relation to an occupier of premises and his visitors shall also apply, in like manner and to the like extent as the principles applicable at common law to an occupier of premises and his invitees or licensees would apply, to regulate—
 - (a) the obligations of a person occupying or having control over any fixed or moveable structure, including any vessel, vehicle or aircraft; and
 - (b) the obligations of a person occupying or having control over any premises or structure in respect of damage to property, including the property of persons who are not themselves his visitors.
- (4) A person entering any premises in exercise of rights conferred by virtue of—
 - (a) section 2(1) of the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000, or
 - (b) an access agreement or order under the National Parks and Access to the Countryside Act 1949, is not, for the purposes of this Act, a visitor of the occupier of the premises.

As amended by CRWA 2000 s 13.

Text: 13.5.5 p 351, 14.2.17 p 381, 14.2A.7

2. Extent of occupier's ordinary duty

- (1) An occupier of premises owes the same duty, the 'common duty of care', to all his visitors, except in so far as he is free to and does extend, restrict, modify or exclude his duty to any visitor or visitors by agreement or otherwise.
- (2) The common duty of care is a duty to take such care as in all the circumstances of the case is reasonable to see that the visitor will be reasonably safe in using the premises for those purposes for which he is invited or permitted by the occupier to be there.
- (3) The circumstances relevant for the present purpose include the degree of care, and of want of care, which would ordinarily be looked for in such a visitor, so that (for example) in proper cases—
 - (a) an occupier must be prepared for children to be less careful than adults; and
 - (b) an occupier may expect that a person, in the exercise of his calling, will appreciate and guard against any special risks ordinarily incident to it, so far as the occupier leaves him free to do so.
- (4) In determining whether the occupier of premises has discharged the common duty of care to a visitor, regard is to be had to all the circumstances, so that (for example)—
 - (a) where damage is caused to a visitor by a danger of which he had been warned by the occupier, the warning is not to be treated without more as absolving the occupier from liability, unless in all the circumstances it was enough to enable the visitor to be reasonably safe; and

[(b) not included.]
- (5) The common duty of care does not impose on an occupier any obligation to a visitor in respect of risks willingly accepted as his by the visitor (the question whether a risk was so accepted to be decided on the same principles as in other cases in which one person owes a duty of care to another).
- (6) For the purposes of this section, persons who enter premises for any purpose in the exercise of a right conferred by law are to be treated as permitted by the occupier to be there for that purpose, whether in fact they have his permission or not.

Text: 13.5.5 p 349

OCCUPIERS' LIABILITY ACT 1984 (c. 3)

1. Duty of occupier to persons other than his visitors

- (1) The rules enacted by this section shall have effect, in place of the rules of the common law, to determine—
 - (a) whether any duty is owed by a person as occupier of premises to persons other than his visitors in respect of any risk of their suffering injury on the premises by reason of any danger due to the state of the premises or to things done or omitted to be done on them; and
 - (b) if so, what that duty is.
- (2) For the purposes of this section, the persons who are to be treated respectively as an occupier of any premises (which, for those purposes, include any fixed or moveable structure) and as his visitors are—
 - (a) any person who owes in relation to the premises the duty referred to in section 2 of the Occupiers' Liability Act 1957 (the common duty of care), and
 - (b) those who are his visitors for the purposes of that duty.
- (3) An occupier of premises owes a duty to another (not being his visitor) in respect of any such risk as is referred to in subsection (1) above if—
 - (a) he is aware of the danger or has reasonable grounds to believe that it exists;
 - (b) he knows or has reasonable grounds to believe that the other is in the vicinity of the danger concerned or that he may come into the vicinity of the danger (in either case, whether the other has lawful authority for being in that vicinity or not); and
 - (c) the risk is one against which, in all the circumstances of the case, he may reasonably be expected to offer the other some protection.
- (4) Where, by virtue of this section, an occupier of premises owes a duty to another in respect of such a risk, the duty is to take such care as is reasonable in all the circumstances of the case to give warning of the danger concerned or to discourage persons from incurring the risk.
- (5) Any duty owed by virtue of this section in respect of a risk may, in an appropriate case, be discharged by taking such steps as are reasonable in all the circumstances of the case to give warning of the danger concerned or to discourage persons from incurring the risk.
- (6) No duty is owed by virtue of this section to any person in respect of risks willingly accepted as his by that person (the question whether a risk was so accepted to be decided on the same principles as in other cases in which one person owes a duty of care to another).
- (6A) At any time when the right conferred by section 2(1) of the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000 is exercisable in relation to land which is access land for the purposes of Part I of that Act, an occupier of the land owes (subject to subsection (6C) below) no duty by virtue of this section to any person in respect of—
 - (a) a risk resulting from the existence of any natural feature of the landscape, or any river, stream, ditch or pond whether or not a natural feature, or
 - (b) a risk of that person suffering injury when passing over, under or through any wall, fence or gate, except by proper use of the gate or of a stile.
- (6AA) Where the land is coastal margin for the purposes of Part I of that Act (including any land treated as coastal margin by virtue of section 16 of that Act), subsection (6A) has effect as if for paragraphs (a) and (b) of that subsection there were substituted “a risk resulting from the existence of any physical feature (whether of the landscape or otherwise)”.
- (6B) For the purposes of subsection (6A) above, any plant, shrub or tree, of whatever origin, is to be regarded as a natural feature of the landscape.
- (6C) Subsection (6A) does not prevent an occupier from owing a duty by virtue of this section in respect of any risk where the danger concerned is due to anything done by the occupier—
 - (a) with the intention of creating that risk, or
 - (b) being reckless as to whether that risk is created.
- (7) No duty is owed by virtue of this section to persons using the highway, and this section does not affect any duty owed to such persons.
- (8) Where a person owes a duty by virtue of this section, he does not, by reason of any breach of the duty, incur any liability in respect of any loss of or danger to property.
- (9) In this section—

‘highway’ means any part of a highway other than a ferry or waterway;

'injury' means anything resulting in death or personal injury, including any disease and any impairment off physical or mental condition; and

'moveable structure' includes any vessel, vehicle or aircraft.

As amended by CRWA 2000 s 13 and by MACA 2009 s 306.

IA. Special considerations relating to access land.

In determining whether any, and if so what, duty is owed by virtue of section 1 by an occupier of land at any time when the right conferred by section 2(1) of the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000 is exercisable in relation to the land, regard is to be had, in particular, to—

- (a) the fact that the existence of that right ought not to place an undue burden (whether financial or otherwise) on the occupier,
- (b) the importance of maintaining the character of the countryside, including features of historic, traditional or archaeological interest, and
- (c) any relevant guidance given under section 20 of that Act.
